dyeing; reasonable; beautiful. Plaza $835. Slump Sharply

The financial readjustment through which Japan has been passing has affected shipping of the empire in many ways. Charter rates on occangoing vessels, which during the war boom ranged around yen 40 ($20) a ton, fell in early May to yen 8 and 9 a ton, and toward the middle of May there were some transactions at yen 7.50 a ton. The financial slump did, however, help some shippers when cargoes originally intended for Japan were diverted to Europe, where better prices and greater freight receipts were realized. This was especially true of large shipments of Java sugar. The principal ports of call recently have been Marseilles, Rotterdam, Hamburg and Italian ports.
